Or Prepay the Bonds of 1858.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—It is styted at the Treasury Department that the depart-ment statement to-morrow will exhibit a fair reduction in the public debt, notwithstanding the revenues of the month have been comparatively very light. The Treasury disbursements for the usual expenses of Government for the month ending to-day have been below the average expenses for the last three or four months.

hour of opening approached. When the doors were thrown open, shortly before 10 o'clock, members and spectators rushed in, filling the floor of the Exchange and the visitors' galler?. The members closed around the President's desk, cheering vo iferously, and waving their ha's. Promptly at 10 o'clock, President Chapman rapped the brokers to order and at once all became the brokers to order and at once all became silent. He then spoke to them as follows: "We have met again after a very momen-tous suspension, for the purpose of resum-ing business. Your action in the interim has met with universal approbation, and has been most satisfactory to yourselves. The business would be carried on under the rules adopted yesterday by the governing committee, which he read, appointing a committee to settle the contracts of defaulting parties. All I ask now is that you help each other to bear the burden that has fallen upon us; to so conduct business as to enable the Exchange to carry on its work successfully."

Loud cheering followed the address, and ousiness was begun. Good feeling appears to exist, and the opening prices of stocks show returning confidence. He also holds that contracts entered into before the closing of the Exchange by its Board cannot be extended by the action of that Board; and, therefore, the contracts of the New York Exchange must be considered anew so far as any power exists to enforce contracts. AMUSEMENTS. THE MINSTRELS-Cal. Wagner's Minstreis cannot say that they are not appreciated in this city, for upon every visit to Nashville they are welcomed by full houses, but upon no former occasion have they been greeted by so large an audience as assembled at the Opera House last night. Indeed, there have not been so many people within its walls any previous night since the war. All the seats had been engaged before night-fall, and many ladies were turned away for want of seats, but we are directed by the management to say that additional seats will be furnished during the remaining performances, so that at least all ladies attending will be comfortably seated. From the time the curtain went up last night, until it descended, the immense audience was kept in the best possible humor. The old members of the company, whose inimitable drolleries have caused the walls of the Opera House to ring with shouts of laughter in times past, demonstrated last night that they had lost nothing in their power to please, while the new additions are destined to become faborites with Nashville audiences. Those present last evening expected a great deal of Howard especially, his enviable reputa-tion having preceded him, and they were not disappointed, his first appearance, in "Old Pete's Birthday," with the song "I couldn't Stay Away," fully confirming his reputation as an unequalled delineator of darkey characteristics. Wagner himself was in the best of spirits, and with Price, Booker, Brown, Bernardo and Morton, constituted an entire team. The troupe is under the management of Mr. J. H. Haverly, one of the most successful managers in the country. GILBERT SISTERS - The management of the Gilbert Sisters' troups expected that the attendance at Masonic Hail would be materially decreased during the engagement of the Minstrels, but were agreeably surprised to see the large attendance at their performance last night. The utmost interest was manifested throughout the entire evening, and the really fine acting of the troupe was constantly greeted with applause. The play was "Meg's Diversion," with Katie Gilbert as Margret Crow, Mr. Pritchard apgreeted pearing in the character of Jasper Pidgeon, and it is unnecessary to say that these parts were capitally rendered. The well-known, and always popular farce "The Bibbs" was well presented, and at its close the audience departed homeward highly plessed with the evening's entertainment. Much better order was observed than on the previous To-night the Gilbert's present the sensa tional drams, taken from Wilkie Collins' novel, entitled The New Magdalene. The following is the cast in the prologue: Mer-cy Merrick, (a nurse attached to a French ambulance), Katle Gilbert; Grace Rose-berry, (a lady traveling to England), Bettie English correspondent), G. E. Caulfield; Capt. Arnault, (of the French army), H. Brown; Surgeon Surville, (of the French war between the French and Prussians, bombarding, explosions, bugin and drum calle, bursting of shells, cries of victory, and the wounded and dying, etc. Reserved seats at Dorman's.

THE story of the degradation of the North Carolina University is thus pungently told in a paragraph from the Hillsboro Recorder: "Some of the young ladies called upon Mr. Pool, to obtain his permission to use the chapel for the Sabbath school celebration. Mr. P. replied that he had no objection provided the chapel was restored in as good order as when the permission was granted. One of the young ladies replied that on examination of the chapel they found it filled with cows. "She supposed it would be an easy matter to drive them back into the building when the exercises were over."
